

Seminar session rubric

Factors	WOW	I'm good	I try	I'm ok	I need work
interaction	I was successful and confident in asking others relevant questions and responding to others' questions.	I was confident in my ability to interact with the others in the group.	I was reasonably successful in asking questions and responding to others' questions.	I managed to ask questions and answer the questions others asked me.	I need to work on my interacting skills.
intonation	A native speaker wouldn't be able to tell I'm not a native speaker.	I have a slight accent but I make a point of using higher highs and lower lows when speaking English.	I am really trying to improve my intonation in order to sound more authentic.	I really like my Swedish accent!	I would like to improve my intonation as I think I sound too Swedish.
structure	I am confident that everyone understands completely when I describe or inform about something.	I make sure that I go from one issue to another instead of jumping back and forth when talking.	I try to think before I talk.	I talk the way I talk, get off my back!	Gee, I really need to start getting my thoughts straight. Even I don't understand what I'm saying.

discussion skills	I am an excellent motor for all discussions.	I make sure to propel the discussion forward.	If the discussion tends to die I make an effort to rekindle it.	I'm not that into discussions.	If the discussion tends to die I'm the one to kill it off completely.
vocabulary	My already extensive range of vocabulary is furthered by my use of new words during seminars.	I have used some new words and expressions from a list I keep handy.	I try to use new words but they don't seem to pop up at the right moment.	I already know enough vocabulary.	I feel constrained by my lack of vocabulary, I would like to learn more words.
language correctness	What can I say, I'm perfect.	I may make some minor errors, I especially pay attention to verbs.	I don't know if I'm making language mistakes and I would like to have them pointed out.	I don't really care about correctness.	I worry about making language mistakes.
issue discussed	I dazzled the crowd with my knowledge of the issue.	I was somewhat familiar with the issue discussed.	I try my best to understand the issue discussed.	The issue didn't interest me so I didn't feel the need for effort.	I really need to read up on this issue.
